

Educational Planning – Resources for Research

Additional education is a great investment that will open many career options to you after graduation. It can also be a lengthy and expensive process. Researching schools and program majors to find ones that best fit your learning style and future goals is an essential first step.

Getting Started

Perhaps you have a career in mind and are seeking the best credential and institution to get there. Or maybe your taking some time to explore your future self through courses and programs that peak your natural curiosities. Regardless, you will quickly discover many pathways available to you. To help make an informed decision we encourage you to consider some of the following when conducting your research.

Campus Location	Tuition & Living Costs	Transportation & Parking
Institutional & Program/major's Reputation	Work Integrated Learning Opportunities	Length to Complete
Support Services	Transfer Credits	Class Sizes
Deadline Dates	Admission Requirements	Graduate Career Outcomes
Campus clubs	Facilities	Scholarships & Funding

If you can't find everything you are looking for online, contact admission's and transfer student offices, who will be happy to answer your questions.

Studying in Canada

Ontario Colleges Employment Profile

Ontario Universities Information

University Data Information

Canadian Universities and Colleges

University Study

Ontario Colleges

Articulation Agreements & Transfer Credits

Colleges and Universities will ask to see past transcripts and educational credentials to determine if any credits can be transferred into or exempted from the program you're applying to. In some cases, institutions have an articulation agreement in place, making it easier to enter directly into the second or third year of a program. This can save a significant amount of time and money.

Ontario Transfer Guide

British Columbia Transfer Guide

Government of Canada

Articulation Agreements

Conestoga Pathways

Application Process

Once you have narrowed down your top 3-5 choices, you will need to apply online according to the institutions of choice's instructions.

Applications will require:

- Contact Information
- Past secondary and post secondary experience
- Employment and volunteer experience
- Transcripts
- Fee's

Carefully read through the instructions, choose the appropriate application type, save your answers, and review before submitting.

Ontario Colleges

Canadian Universities